weapons. Belgium is still pondering the question, and events in the Netherlands are likely to have an effect.

Even in Britain and West Germany, the picture is not entirely clear. The British Labor Party is opposed to deployment and might well reverse Britain's decision if it wins the next general election, probably in 1984.

That could leave West Germany as the sole North European site of the missile system, a situa-

But noting that it was still uncertain what kind of government coalition would be formed in the Netherlands, be added that "we must assume, of course, that the result could affect the climate in Europe.'

Forming a Coalition

High-ranking West German officials, including Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, have re-peatedly said that they see little likelihood of any coalition of Dutch parties reaching a favorable de-cision on stationing Cruise missiles in the Nether-lander. lands.

The governing Dutch coalition fell only two seats short of a majority in the 150-member lower house. The premier's party took 48 seats, a loss of one, and his partners, the rightist Liberals, took 26, a loss of two, for a total of 74. Cooceivably, they could cob-ble together a fragile alliance with the new Re-formed Political Federation, a kind of Dutch Moral Meiority, which rejurd to us a kind of Dutch Moral Majority, which gained two seats.

Bot even if that happens — and such a coalition would violate the usual Dutch preference for gov-ernments based on large parties and not on splinter groups — it is doubtful that Mr. van Agt could push through Cruise-missile deployment. At least half a dozen Christian Democrats would desert him on the question; their dogged opposition is the rea-son that approval was impossible to achieve under the last government. Any other coalition would have to include the Labor Party, whose leader, Joop den Uyl, has made a firm pledge to refuse to join any government that might countenance deployment. Having lost nine seats Tuesday, the Labor Party could ill afford to go back on its leader's word.

Crippling Delay

One likely outcome of the coalition-building process, which could take six months or more, is an alliance between the Christian Democrats, Labor and Democrats '66, a leftist party that more than doubled its representation, from eight seats to 17. It might agree to delay a decision on deployment for two or three or four more years, which would save face but would amount, in the view of NATO experts, to a rejection. After that length of time, pre-liminary work would be too far advanced to include the Netherlands.

Only a far stronger government than the ooe that seems to be in prospect could comfortably accept Cruise missiles. The public, as things now stand, clearly does not want them. A poll carried out last month showed that only 8 percent of the electorate would accept them without qualification, with an additional is percent willing to take them only if arms-control oegotiations accompanied deploy-ment, and 18 percent more willing only if arms-control negotiations failed completely. A politician favoring the missiles commented, "For us, those figures are suicidal."

Dutch opposition to the weapons springs from a complex set of factors, including a tradition of paci-ficism that, while confined to a minority, has per-sisted. For most of the first half of this century, a group called the Broken Rifles campaigned to keep the Dutch out of war. The Roman Catholic and Dutch deformed churcher have added their union Dutch Reformed churches have added their voices in the last decade to the ecumenical Church Peace Council

But perhaps the most important element is the "small-country syndrome," as a Western diplomat in the Netherlands calls it — the view that a small country cannot much affect the world balance of power and ought oot to try. Similar views are held in Denmark and in Belgium. One politician put the point pungently in terms of the Netherlands' great port: "Yon need Rotterdam as badly as we do, so you'll help if we need it. Cruise missiles or oot."

If Mr. van Agt had campaigned publiely for deployment, some analysts say, he might have changed the voters' opinions, though it would have been difficult. Now it is obviously too late. The best thing for the Netherlands' partners in NATO to do. a frieodly diplomat commented, "would be to stop pressing the Duteb oo this issue, and find a way to build two kinds of firebreaks — one to stop any forther erosion in this country's commitment to NATO, the other to prevent this kind of rejectioo from spreading beyond the Netherlands."

A high state of alert in Syria has been reported by Israel's chief of staff, Li. Gen. Rafael Eytan, and Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zipori. gram of moral renewal for the nation long be-fore the August events. Solidarity has a special debt of gratitude to him. His voice helped and strengthened us in the most difficult moments. It will always remain alive for us." A Solidarity delegation placed a large red-and-white trade-union banner by the side of Cardinal Wyszynski's coffin. Cardinal Macharski takes over as acting head of the Polish church until a successor to Cardinal Wyszynski is elected. A church spokesman said that the election process, which will raise delicate issues in church-state relations, could take up to two months.

Under present rules, the Episcopal Conference is required to suggest three candidates for primate - any or all of whom can be vetoed by the state anthorities. In practice, however, the church is unlikely to agree to what amounts to state interference in the election. As with all episcopal appointments, the pope, too, will have a decisive say in the appointment

Finding a successor to Cardinal Wyszynski is complicated by the fact that there is no obvi-ous candidate. Cardinal Macharski, 53, is a brilliant theologian but lacks Cardinal Wyszynski's charisma and authority.

Other possible candidates include Archbishop Jerzy Stroba of Poznan, 61; Bishop Branislaw Dabrowski, 63, secretary of the Polish episcopate; Bishop Henryk Gulbinowicz of Wroclaw, 52; and Bishop Jozef Glemp of Olsztyn, 52.

The choice of a successor to Cardinal Wyszynski has important political implica-tions in view of the church's special position in Polish society. About 90 percent of Poles are Catholics, and the primate's pronouncements help determine their attitude toward the state authorities.

Church sources say that someone like Bishop Dabrowski, who has been in charge of dayto-day negotiations with the regime, would probably prove more flexible than one of the younger prelates.

The caretaker government instructed its commission for national security to probe all the security aspects involved in the scandal of P-2, beaded by Licio Gelli, a businessman with dual Argentine-Italian nationality who has fled abroad. Mr. Gelli's list of alleged members of his lodge included three Cabinet ministers, 30 generals, eight admirals, and 43 legislators, as well as hundreds of other leading Italian personalities in var-ions sectors of the economy and ioumalism

Mr. Forlani's coalition government resigned Tuesday when the Socialists, who were the Christian Democrats' principal partners in the Cabinet, declared that the crisis coold oot be solved by a simple Cabinet shuffle. The Socialists acted after the government grudging-ly agreed to make public the list of 953 alleged members of the lodge. Police had found the list in Mr. Gelli's office in March.

Mr. Forlani was asked Thursday by President Sandro Pertini to try to form a new Cabinet. It is usual for the president to give the outgoing premier an opportunity to form a new government. The chances of Mr. Forlani may hinge on his ability to persuade the right-of-center Liberals to join the four-party coalition that made up his last government. The Social Democrats and Republicans were in that coalition in addition to the Christian Democrats and Social-

BONN - Senior West German security officials possess "clear indications" that a number of fugirive members of leftist West German terrorist groups are hiding under the protection of the Palestine Liberation Organization in areas it controls in Lebanon.

The officials also reported that despite denials by the PLO, they suspected that the Palestinians had given training to rightist West Ger-man extremists involved in neo-Nazi paramilitary organizations.

The disclosures were made in a discussion with a reporter about West German terrorism's international links. The conversation took place with the understanding that the officials' names or functions would not be published.

The security experts identified the terrorist fugitives in Lebanon as members of the Red Army Faction founded by the late Andreas Baader and Ulrike Meinhof. The group was responsible for several years of intensely violent activity in West Germany through 1977.

Attempt on Haig

The experts also said they were convinced that the Red Army Faction was responsible for the attempted assassination in Belgium in June, 1979, of Alexander M. Haig Jr., who was then completing his term as commanding general of NATO forces and is now the U.S. secretary of state. Originally, there had been suspicions that the Irish Republican Army might have been involved in that bomb attack. The attack on Mr. Haig was the last clearly discernible major oper-ation by the Red Army Faction, although plans for other acts have been found, the experts said. West Germany, however, has not been free of terrorist killings. Heinz-Herbert Karry, the finance minister of Hesse state, national treasurer of the Free Democratic Party and a well-known Jewish supporter of Israel, was slain this month. The police have been trying to determine if there are links between Mr. Karry's death, described as a political murder; the fatal shooting in December of a Jewish publisher in the city of Erlangen; and the killing in Austria on May 1 of Heinz Nittel, a Jewish public official and presi-dent of the Austrian-Israeli Society. A Palestinian group calling it-self the Fatah Revolution Committee told an Austrian magazine this week that it was behind Mr. Nittel's murder.

Block Says U.S. and Russia Plan Grain Talks The Associated Press

LONDON - U.S. and Soviet representatives will hold talks in London early next month on new sales of U.S. grain to the Soviet Union, U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block said Thursday.

Since President Reagan lifted the partial U.S. grain embargo against the Soviet Union on April 24, the two countries have held meetings to discuss the resumption of sales under a five-year agreement that expires at the end of September. Mr. Block said no decision had been made on how much grain might be sold, although the United States has a large grain surplus and Soviet production this year is expected to fall below.

Mr. Block, on a seven-nation tour to convey U.S. opposition to Common Market crop subsidies, told reporters that the London talks would focus on sales of grain above the level that had been allowed under the partial embargo. He said it was possible that the two governments would also discuss a renewal of the long-term grain agreement.

Reagan Meets Avital Shcharansky, Offers Help Renters

WASHINGTON — President Reagan on Thursday met Avital Shcharansky, the wife of Anatoli B. Shcharansky, and promised to do all he could to secure the imprisoned Soviet Jewish dissident's release, the White House said.

Joseph Mendelevich, a Jewish dissident who was released recently after serving an 11-year sentence in a Soviet prison, also attended the 30-minute meeting in the White House Oval Office.

Mr. Shcharansky was convicted in July, 1978, on charges of treason, espionage and anti-Soviet agitation and was sentenced to three years in prison and 10 years in a labor camp. His wife, who lives in Israel, said earlier this month that her husband had serious health problems and might be near death.

"The state should take over all the big mines in Zimbabwe." The prime minister has never talked about outright nationalization.

Tentative Accord Reached on Sinai Force United Press International

CAIRO - U.S., Egyptian and Israeli negotiators announced a framework accord Thursday on setting up a multinational peacekeeping force for the Sinai desert with U.S. troop participation.

Michael Sterner, U.S. deputy assistant secretary of state, said at a news conference he believed the remaining issues were mainly technical and would be resolved when the talks resumed in Tel Aviv on June 9. If a final agreement is reached and the accord initialed in Tel Aviv, it still would have to be approved by the legislatures of the three countries before being signed. The force would be stationed at Rafah in the north of the Sinai and Sharm el-Sheikh in the south. It would operate patriols all along the border.

WHEN YOU TELL'EM BACK HOME WHAT FRANKFUR ALL ABOUT, SAVE A ROLL OF MARKS ON THE CALL

Ah, the food in Europe! It's really something else. You'll sample the kinds of treats you wish you could share with the folks you left behind. So make their mouths water. Give 'em a call. But be sure to check these mark-saving tips first.

SAVE ON SURCHARGES Many hotels outside the U.S. charge exorbitant surcharge fees on international calls. And sometimes the fees are greater than the cost of the call itself. But if your hotel has TELEPLAN, the way to keep hotel surcharges reasonable, go ahead and call. No Teleplan? Read on!

There are other ways to save money. SAVE WITH A SHORTLE

In most countries there's no threeminute minimum on self-dialed calls. So if your hotel offers International Dialing from your room, place a short call home and have them call you back. The surcharge on short calls is low. And you pay for the callback from the States with dollars, not local currency, when you get your next home or office phone bill.

SAVE THESE OTHER WAYS Telephone Company credit card and collect calls may be placed in many countries. And where they are, the hotel surcharges on such calls are usually low. Or, you can avoid surcharges altogether by calling from the post office or from other telephone centers.

SAVE NIGHTS & WEEKENDS

Always check to see whether the country you're in has lower rates at night and on weekends. Usually the savings are considerable.

lapping issues: the question of the 12,000 British soldiers who police the province in concert with its own police force and the larger question of whether the province should continue to be part of the United Kingdom and, if so, under what terms.

The soldiers were sent in temporarily in 1969 to keep peace between Protestant and Roman Catholie street gangs. Even Catholics who deeply resented the British presence welcomed the troops at first, regarding them as protection.

But as the endless television news broadcasts of the last month made clear to Britons who had not given the matter much thought lately, the soldiers' role has changed. Most of their time is now spent in street battles or tense confrontations with Catholic gangs in Catholic neighborhoods, where they are widely regarded with bitterness as a foreign army of occupation.

chiatrists at Butner to report to the court by July 1 on the results of their examination of Mr. Hinckley. Judge Bryant said that the psychiatrists chosen by the defense lawyers must have access to Mr. Hinckley while he is at the prison.

The Youth Corrections Act gives judges options they would not otherwise have, ranging from the complete suspension of the sentence to enforcement of an indefinite sentence in cases where extended treatment is deemed necessary.

by the government since the con-troversy erupted over U.S. ships carrying atomic weapons.

U.S. Aides in Japan Reported to Reject

The Navy expressed irritation at the Yokosuka mayor's request. A statement issued Thursday night by Rear Adm. Donald L. Felt, commander of U.S. naval forces in Japan, asserted that 3,000 depend-ents of the Midway's crew were "antiously awaiting" its return and that postponement "would have a devastating effect on the morale" of the families.

Adm. Felt said nevertheless that he would pass the mayor's request on to a "higher authority."

Publication of reports that American ships have routinely carried ouclear weapons into Japa-nese ports began the controversy 10 days ago, putting the govern-ment on the defensive. Premier Zenko Suzuki has persistently denied the reports. The Midway has become the new focal point of attack by antiouclear forces, which plan a big demonstration when the ship docks at Yokosuka. It is expected on June 5, although no date has been officially announced.

The Midway carries F-4, A-6, and A-7 fighter and attack planes, which normally are believed to carry ouclear weapons. It has been eway from port since Feb. 23 in the South Pacific and the Indian Ocean and is now at Subie Bay in the Philippines. Several bundred relatives of crew members live in the Yokosuka area, and they usually turn out in force to welcome the ship home.

Request for Delay of Midway's Return Since the controversy began sentiment against nuclear weapons has been most frequent in port cit-ies, such as Yokosuka, where ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet call often.

Mayor Kazuo Yokoyama of Yokosuka appealed to Adm. Felt because of what be called the public's "deep concern" the over ouclear weapons.

The mayor said the docking would be "inappropriate" at a time when the people have such "deep suspicions" about whether Ameri-can ships bring such weapons into ports or Japanese waters.

A similar appeal, delivered to Premier Suzuki's office, asked also for a clarification of whether the government was maintaining the country's anti-nuclear principles.

Mayor Yokoyama is e member of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party and is running for re-elec-tion. Concern for his election chances was said to be one reason the government took the unusual step of inquiring whether the United States would consider postpon-ing the Midway's arrival.

Cardinal Wyszynski: Symbol of Freedom

From Agency Dispetches WARSAW --- As Communist leaders came and went in Poland, Cardinal Stefan Wyszynski re-mained in office — a living reminder of his country's age-old quest for freedom and independence.

The cardinal, who died Thursday of abdominal cancer at the age of 79, led the Roman Catholic Church in Poland for 32 years.

One of the ironies of his remarkable career is that Poland's Communist rulers will mourn his passing almost as much as his immense Catholie following. During the cri-sis that gripped Poland at the end of his life, the implacable opponent of Communism was univer-sally regarded as the greatest na-tional bulwark for social and political stability.

After years of battling the regime, Cardinal Wyszynski used his enormous influence during the last few months to urge moderation oo his compatriots. He was a trusted intermediary between the anthori-ties and the independent Solidarity trade-union movement.

Paid for Defiance

A generation of Poles, the vast majority of whom are Catholic, looked to Cardinal Wyszynski as the embodiment of Poland's sovereighty. He won enormous popular respect as a result of his unbending refusal to be intimidated by the repressive power of a totalitarian

For many years, particularly during the neo-Stalinist period of the early 1950s, the Roman Catholic Church was the only institution in Poland to preserve its independence and historical traditions. Cardinal Wyszynski paid for his defi-ance with a spell of forced isolation, but this only added to his reputation and popularity.

Although adamantly opposed to Marxist ideas, the cardinal was a political realist. His two main concerns were the integrity of the Polish nation and the spiritual welfare of its people. This in turn led him to take the loog view of history. He was convinced that Poland's 1,000year Christian tradition would outlast Communist rule.

Different Perspective

It was this difference in historical perspective that enabled him to oegotiate with one Communist leader after another - from Wla-dyslaw Gomulka to Stanislaw Kania -- despite their vastly different aims. It also earned him the grudging respect of his political oppo-

A frequent comment by Com-munist officials was that they felt they knew where they stood with Cardinal Wyszynski, They certainly could not expect flattery or subservience. But it was possible to do business with him and even conclude temporary alliances in the Polish national interest.

Cardinal Wyszynski did not disguise his strong national feeling. In 1974 sermon, he said, "Next to God, our first love is Poland. After God one must above all remain faithful to our homeland, to the Polish national culture."

Many Solidarity leaders openly revered the primate. Lech Walesa once described him as the most impressive man he had ever met -and specifically included Pope John Paul II, also a Pole, in the comparison,

Immense Wisdom'

In an interview with Oriana Fallaci, the Italian journalist, Mr. Walesa said of the Polish primate: "He is a great man, his wisdom is immense and his help has been enormous ... People don't know it was Cardinal Wyszynski who arranged our meetings with [Edward] Gierek and Kania, and even during the flabor unrest earlier this year] I had to ask him to give me a hand. Without his intervention, I would't have been able to call an end to those strikes.

In March, just before he was confined to bed, Cardinal Wyszynski helped defuse tension between the government and Solidarity so that an indefinite general strike was avoided after union activists were beaten up by police in the northern town of Bydgoszcz.

Cardinal Wyszynski was a tall, handsome figure, a masterful ora-tor with a rich, resonant voice.

When he was born, on Aug. 3. When he was boin, on Aug. 5, 1901. Poland was still divided among Russia, Germany and Aus-tria. The Wyszynski family came from the village of Zuzela between Warsaw and Bialystok in what is now northeast Poland but at that time was still part of the Russian Empire. The cardinal's father was an impoverished nobleman who taught in the village school and

The young Wyszynski was or-dained a priest at the age of 23 and sent to an industrial parish in the city of Wloclawek on the Vistula River oorth of Warsaw. The job gave him him his first insight into orkers' grievances - another lasting concern in his career. In 1933, Wloclawek was the scene of mass demonstrations by unemployed workers. Father Wyszynski's preoccupation with labor and agricultural problems quickly led to him being dubbed the worker priest." He also con-tinued his theological studies,

In the Los Angeles entertain-ment community Shore is known as a fanatic about tennis and golf, and she sponsors a professional golf tournament bearing her name. Are the two sports the keys to why she looks better than many people her age?

"To tell the truth, I was never happy with the way 1 looked," she said. "So when I was 13, 14 she and 15 1 always wore a lot of makeup to try to look better. So without knowing it I was protecting my skin at an early age. Taking care of your skin is

The singer said that running 20 to 25 minutes every day also helps keep her in shape. At home in Beverly Hills she uses a track around her tennis court, and at her Malibu beach house she runs on the road. When she is performing in Las Vegas she runs up and down the corridors of her hotel

'La Fille mal gardee' Gets New Paris Opera Staging

Dance

By David Scevens

International Herald Tribune PARIS — "La Fille mal gardee," in one form or another one of the oldest ballets in continuous existence, is back in the repertory of the Paris Opera after an absence of 127 years, in a handsome new production that is choreographically sophisticated, dramatically inno-cent, and at all times a delight to watch.

The ballet has had a long and checkered career since it was first performed on July 1, 1789 (two weeks before the fall of the Bas-tille), in Bordeaux, with a story and choreography set by Jean Dauberval to a potpourri of popu-lar airs and dances. A 1828 revival at the Paris Opera had a score partly composed, partly borrowed - by Ferdinand Heroid. In 1864, one Peter Ludwig Hertel com-posed a new score for a Berlin production, and Petipa and Ivanov based their 1885 St. Petersburg production on his music. For the last two decades the version known in the West mainly through Frederick Ashton's celebrated production, with a new arrangement of Herold's music, sets by Osbert Lancaster, and a deliberately anglicized choreography. For its new production, the Op-era has turned to Heinz Spoerli, who for eight years has been the director and chief choreographer of the ballet at the Stadttheater in his native Basel, where he has been the prolific builder of a repertory encompassing restudied versions of classics and new ballets marked by musicality and choreographic inventiveness

Spoerli has taken the history of "La Fille mal gardee" into full account in his new verson. He has gone back to its French traditions, even to the point of alluding to the revolutionary climate of 1789 in the music and some of the costumes. He has opted for a score that is a mixture of Herold (French and simpler) and Hertel (heavier and more elaborate), with brief additions of Rossini and Haydn, and with stylistic discrepancies more or less ironed out in a new arrangement by Jean-Michel Damase

Damase. The story of rural love is simple. Lise and Colas love one another, but Lise's mother, the Widow Simone (traditionally danced by a male), wants to marry her daughter to Alain, a wealthy simpleton. The young lovers contrive to be caught alone in Lise's bedroom, ruining Mama's marriage plans and forcing her agreement to their

Spoerli spins out the two scenes of the first act to considerable length, not only with expanded character bits for Widow Simone (Georges Piletta), Alain's father (Alain Marty) and a drunken gar-dener (Claude Morel), but with a number of peasant dances and ensemble numbers, not to mention solos and pas de deux for the principals. The handling of the Widow Simone character is particularly striking, and brilliantly carried off by Piletta. Far from being grotesque, he-she is rather fetching and a good dancer (even on point, an anachronism, or an allusion to Hertel's appropriate music), so the occasional pratfalls are all the fun-

mer. But the social comment is not allowed to get the upper hand. It is an evening for dancing and, last night, it was in good hands with Noella Pontois an irresistible Lise and Cyril Atanassoff a stalwart Colas. Jacques Namont was Alain, in this production hopeless sby, ticklish and a kite addict.

Heinz Balthes' farm courtyard grain field, house interior and drop curtains were rustic and rich in au tumnal colors, aptly matched by Heinz Berner's costumes. Andre Girard was the able conductor.

"He just disappeared around noon to hunt. He tore up floorboards in a remote part of the brewery, and my wife and 1 waited. Around 5 in the evening he showed up with an etiquette from one of Austria's oldest breweries, Brewery Jaeger. It had shut down in 1911."

OPEC Tightens the Tap

The price freeze agreed upon at this week's achieved their goal at OPEC, which serves OPEC meeting in Geneva is less important than the precedent set. For the first time, 10 of the 13 members of the oil cartel agreed to cut production to regain control of the currently glutted market. The odd sheikhs out were the Saudis, but several of the oil ministers at the conference hinted broadly that Riyadh could be expected to follow before long with a production cut of perhaps a million barrels a day. Saudi Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani could not be found for comment.

It should come as no surprise that OPEC has finally decided to use its ultimate weapon, excepting a suicidal total cutoff. There are 2 to 3 million extra barrels of oil sloshing around daily in the world market place, which has a predictably depressing effect on prices. That has happened before, but this time it's different. The glut results from conscious policies by the industrial countries to conserve energy and switch to alternative sources. A price increase now would accelerate that process.

The actual cuts are likely to be small, especially in the cases of countries with relatively low reserves and high development costs. Even if Saudi Arabia does reduce its output by 1 million barrels a day the total OPEC cut might not completely eliminate the surplus. But it should tighten things up enough so that at the next OPEC price-fixing meeting in December, an increase will be possible, perhaps together with price unification and linkage to inflation, economic growth and currency fluctuation.

If that happens, the Saudis will have several purposes in their global strategy. They want to maintain good relations with their Arab neighbors, and settling the long quarrel over a unified oil price would help accomplish that. They want to encourage the West to keep burning oil, and a predictable price will do that. They also want to help keep the industrialized economies in good shape to prevent their market from diminishing, and to protect their investments and bank deposits abroad. And they want to cultivate a military relationship with several Western countries to protect their oilfields and for its symbolic and prestige value. Some of those goals are identical with Western interests, but that is a result of coincidence, not Saudi altruism.

Of course, there are other possibilities that could drastically change the equation. The war between Iraq and Iran could heat up again; or a war could break out between Israel and Syria; or what is probably more likely in the Middle East, something totally unexpected could happen. If one of those things does not occur between now and December, it will undoubtedly happen after December. With that in mind, the industrialized countries should keep conserving oil, storing it in strategic reserves, switching to coal and developing new sources of energy. Such policies have already begun to produce results as the current glut proves. If they are continued and reinforced, the age of energy blackmail may turn out to be less than a decade long. If they are not, it could stretch well into the next century.

Immigration: Multiple Choice

What does a good conservative think government should do about immigration of workers from Mexico:

(a) Keep them out. The United States should be for U.S. citizens, or at least immigration should be balanced among different countries

(b) Keep them out, We don't need any more people to create social problems and soak up scarce social welfare dollars. Even the temporarily legal have a way of becoming the permanently illegal.

(c) Let them in, to discipline the domestic labor force and provide workers for the stoop labor that Americans simply won't do.

(d) Let them in. We need to please Mexico, whose oil is all-important.

* * 1

What does a good liberal think government should do about immigration of workers from Mexico:

(a) Let them in; this land of opportunity is enriched by immigrants' spunk and vitality.

(b) Let them in; we have a duty to share our riches with people from the Western Hemisphere (if not, indeed, the world). (c) Keep them out. Our first duty is to maintain social welfare for poor people already here.

about a million aliens. Two, create a pilot program authorizing the admission of legal temporary workers. Three, substantially strengthen immigration enforcement.

Enforcement is the key to all the rest. An amnesty would be welcome, removing a cloud of exploitation and fear that hangs over illegal aliens for years. But without stronger enforcement, amnesty would only encourage more illegal immigration.

The merits of any guest worker program are debatable. But letting in 50,000 a year would obviously be preferable to 500,000 or 750,000, as some administration officials suggest. That's 750,000 every year. When the year is up, how many will go into hiding -and bring their families? Without strong enforcement, a guest worker program risks be-coming an invitation to illegal residence.

The immigration enforcement now in the cards seems startlingly contradictory. One kind is direct: more guards at the borders. Yet the Border Patrol is depleted and dispirited; it cannot afford to keep all its vehicles running even now - and the new Reagan budget cuts more. The Cabinet committee also recognizes the need to penalize employers who hire illegal aliens. For that to work, applicants would have to show identification, now easily forged. The remedy, more secure identification, incites fears of internal passports and police statism. Such fears are unjustified, in our judgment, and the committee seems rightly intent on developing a forgery-resistant Social Security card. But no such decision has yet been made, nor has the Border Patrol yet been allocated any new funds. Only if the administration takes such steps can it demonstrate it is sincere in wanting a legal, practical immigration policy. If not, people on both sides of the border will quickly get the real message, and it won't be multiple choice.

LOS ANGELES — Despite ostensibly con-ciliatory remarks by Soviet President Leonid L Brezhnev, the Russians would like to march into Poland if the price were not too

The major deterrent has been the Polish will to resist. But there is another, less obvious, factor to consider: While the Russian half of the Soviet Union's population would support an invasion to re-establish Soviet orthodoxy in Poland, what about the non-Russian hall? If the Kremlin sensed that an attack on Poland might trigger uprisings inside the Soviet Un-ion, that alone would be a major reason for the cautious strategy Until recently, I would have scoffed at the notion of popular uprisings in the Soviet Union, but events in my native Estonia have made me wonder. Since last fall, there has been an unprecedented outpouring of large-scale protest — massive student demonstra-tions, a successful strike by a thousand work-ers, and a letter to the Communist Party newspaper, Pravda, from 40 Estonian intellectuals asking for a candid discussion of Estonian-Russian relations.

Food Shortages

By most social indicators, Estonia is ahead of all the other Soviet Socialist republics, and certainly has not been the most restive; dissent has been much more active in Catholic Lithuania. Yet the unrest in Estonia has broad significance because it is rooted in problems that afflict all of the Soviet Union: worker unhappiness about food shortages and ethnic populations' irritation with a growing Russification campaign. The Nazis' genocidal plan for the Baltic re-publics of Latvia, Lithuania and Estonia envisioned the resettlement there of half a million German immigrants by the 1960s. Instead, un-der postwar Soviet rule, 1 million Russians came. The Soviet invasion of Afghanistan heightened Estonians' fears of becoming a minority in their own country.

The recent protests, the first since the 1950s, began last Sept. 22 in Tallinn, Estonia's capi-

Miss Lamsum is a sociologist, and the letter she co-signed pro-tested "the appointment of persons with inade-quate knowledge of Estonian culture to re-sponsible posts." This was seen as a reference to Estonia's party chief. Karl Vaino, and min-ister of culture, Elsa Grechkina, both born in the Swist Unice. Many of the 10,000 people at the concert, most of them high-school students, took to the streets, shouting "Russians go home!" and "Better cafeteria food!" (Given the dire food shortages in the Soviet Union, the latter demand was not as petty as it might sound.) Sev-eral hundred students were arrested briefly and then suspended from school. On Oct. 1 and 3, organized student demonstrators converged on government buildings, and many were severely beaten by Soviet police.

Strike Held

Unrest spread to the Nautical Institute in Parnu and to the university in Tartu, and flared up again in Tallinn on Oct. 7 and 8. The Soviet-controlled Estonian press' coverage of the arrest of the "instigators" and "hooligans" was unprecedented; the major newspapers had never before even mentioned any protest. Meanwhile, 1,000 workers went on strike at the Experimental Repair Plant in Tartu. They demanded payment of bonuses that had been promised and opposed increases in work quotas. An emissary from Moscow ended the strike on its second day by acceding to all demands. It was the first major industrial strike in Estonia since 1940 — and, of course, it happened just as workers were winning concessions in Poland.

The violent suppression of the student's protests prompted the intellectuals' Oct. 28 letter to Pravda, It was not published, but copies have been circulated. They said that the demonstrations were not acts of rowdiness but an unexaggerated reflection of the dissatisfaction of numerous older Estonians,"

The answer to both questions, obviously, is the same - all of the above. Which is what a Cabinet committee seems ready to propose as the Reagan immigration policy - a little of this, a little of that, pleasing everyone a little. Still, it could have a practical effect, providing more seasonal workers, and a humane effect, lifting the cloud that hangs over many aliens. It could be a considerable achievement - but only if combined with serious enforcement.

The Cabinet committee evidently has three proposals in mind. One, legalize the status of

U.S. Vote at WHO Criticized

It's no use crying over spilt milk, goes the old saying, but the U.S. decision to oppose the adoption of a voluntary international code to curtail the promotion of artificial milk products for infants has certainly caused a great deal of soul-searching in the United States itself and widespread criticism abroad.

By casting the sole negative vote at a 119nation Geneva conference held last week under the auspices of the World Health Organization, the United States unequivocally and unnecessarily --- cast itself in the role of the big capitalist bad guy.

As the code is voluntary, few nations would have really been worried about how strictly the United States would have enforced the code had it decided to vote in its favor.

By apparently yielding to pressure from big business interests, however, the United States has demonstrated a quality of which the rest of the world has often suspected diplomatic naivete.

Schmidt in Trouble

West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt's talks in Washington took place against a background of political crisis in West Germany that cannot be dismissed as a mere passing storm. His own party is showing opposition to the NATO Euromissiles decision it had previously accepted, his government is embroiled in arguments about whether military spending should be financed from cuts in social services, and antinuclear and pro-development aid factions are additionally helping to divide the Social Democrats. It is beginning to look as though the Bonn coalition is moving towards disintegration.

Seventy-Five Years Ago May 29, 1906

NEW YORK — Prof. Joseph Jacobs, the great authority on folklore, has declared that American mediocrity can be attributed to the fact that most Americans are immigrants who have come here for material advancement. The immigrants are good-natured, strong and useful citizens, be says, but they are not the kind who can concentrate their minds on any subject continuously, or who can indulge in brooding, which really brings on great spirituality. It is heredity that counts. "It is from the Puritan and Huguenot," he adds, "that we may expect spirimal geniuses, as exem-plified in Hawthorne and Poe." Prof. Jacobs is an immigrant himself and bolds a chair in the Jewish Theological Seminary.

ROME -The special tribunal for the defense of the state passed sentence of death today upon Michele Chirru, who was born in Italy 32 years ago, but later became a naturalized citizen of the United States, after finding him guilty of planning an attempt against the life of Benito Mussolini and further acts endangering the safety of the state. As the law provides no appeal from the decision of the tribunal, the sentence of death will probably be carried out by shooting tomorrow morning unless clemency is granted by the king of Italy. Schirru entered Italy on a U.S. passport. At the U.S. Embassy tonight it was said that no special instructions had been received from the State Department, Thorny Question The time has come once more to re-examine the role of the United States and U.S. multinationals in the bloody downfall of the government of Salvador Allende, which cost Mr. Allende his life. What happened in Chile could provide useful pointers to the U.S. approach to the elected president of France, Francois Mitterrand.

Already, writers such as Joseph Kraft (IHT. May 13) are softly beating the muffled drums of doom. Mr. Mitterrand, we are told, is "renowned for unreliability"; Mr. Kraft, however, carefully R abstains from providing any sub- Hong Kong.

With members of Congress, the administration and the business community all unwilling to challenge a draft of the law for fear of being accused of favoring bribery, the bill sailed through Congress by unanimous vote and was signed into law in December, 1977.

The result? Apparently, the United States is the only country in the world to impose a comprebensive extraterritorial anti-bribery law upon all of its foreign business practices, public and pri-vate. In fact, from the day of enactment, the FCPA has created problems for fully law-abiding companies engaged in overseas transactions. The law itself is difficult to decipher, hard to enforce and ambiguous enough to have bred confusion for both business participation in official affairs. The cost of complying with the accounting and record-keeping re-quirements of the FCPA places an excessive burden on all publicly held companies, regardless of whether they make any foreign sales. To violate the statute one need not export at all; one need only to fail to keep company books in the detail that the SEC deems necessary. Most alarming is the fact that the American Bar Association, the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants and the SEC disagree among them-selves as to a firm's responsibility under the accounting provisions of

MIFED PRESS RELEASE

MILANO, May 28, 1981—"MIFED BIGGER AND BETTER THAN EVER" has just announced MIFED's Commissioner-General M.G. Franci while revealing that the 17,000 sq.m. of last year's MIFED have been expanded this year to 21,900 sq.m. Area will include 150 offices redesigned to include reception and one or two small rooms for viewing videocassettes, while keeping intact the number of projection rooms for public screenings, 35 studios with various seating capacity. Vast reception halls have been added for private parties and the swanky "Super Club" for executive meetings. Spacious dining rooms and brand new "quick lunch" service will be available" Dr. Franci hastened to stress that the traditional atmosphere of MIFED will be safeguarded, especially privacy and good taste. "One touch of Renaissance will be visible here and there" Dr. Franci added. "Exquisite food, excellent wines, fine service will be offered at moderate prices, less than half of what one would spend anywhere. Including Milano. We are a non-profit organization, we are not here to make money but to render a service to the film and to the television industry in particular; not forgetting the spiritual side of our work exemplified by the four International Festivals of the "Child in our time" run in cooperation with the United Nations. This year a special section was dedicated to films concerning disabled children, 1981 having been proclaimed, by the UN, International Year of Disabled Persons."

Dr. Franci is quite attached to the old formula of MIFED as he conceived it 21 years ago. "MIFED is still a private club" he likes to repeat, "strictly reserved to buyers and sellers of films and TV programs. The formula remains unchanged in spite of the large expansion of area and services. Take, for instance, our medical assistance. We have bought the most costly and recent equipment and our medical staff is in a position to help our clients to continue a cure while they work and, of course, in case of emergency: and all this at no charge."

Dr. Franci also revealed that next October Traditional MIFED (October 25-30) will conclude the 44th Session, in order to suit the commitments of those participants who wish to attend the EBU Screenings. "We have tried our best to make life easier for our friends, thus allowing them to attend both MIFED and EBU without any inconvenience".

The 44th MIFED will open with Indian Summer (October 19-25) and has been lengthened by two days on the request of many participants. It will be followed by the East-West Film Market (October 25-30) and concurrently by Traditional MIFED. Big parties are already scheduled by UNIFRANCE, ANICA, MIFED and private companies. A special evening at La Scala has been booked. "Our style" adds immediately Dr. Franci, "does not cater to parties. Our motto is: Lot of good work and useful encounters in a few days. People come to MIFED to do business and not to be entertained. Believe me, after a working day watching dozens of movies, one is tired and prefers to go to sleep".

Dr. Franci has also revealed that, five months ahead of opening date, more than half of the offices have been booked already. "I keep my fingers crossed" Dr. Franci exclaimed. "I hope this trend will subside otherwise I shall be unable to accommodate everybody: MIFED is bigger than ever, but not big like La Scala." - -- -

New York Times Service PARIS - Peugeot, the French auto-PARIS — Peugeot, the French auto-maker that announced this week that it would jointly develop a new car for the U.S. market with Chrysler, used to be considered the prissy spinster of the French auto industry. It was rich, prop-er and dull, qualities that reflected its descent from the 19th-century steel cor-set stay maker who formed at a set stay maker who founded it.

But then the spinster went on a marrying spree, gobbling up two ne'er-do-well hus-bands with in decent haste and making a try for a third, which transformed it into Europe's biggest automobile company and the third largest in the world after General Motors and Ford. The com-pany suddenly found itself big, glamorous — and without money.

Last week Peugeot, in fact, said that all its vehi-cle divisions went into the red last year by nearly $100 million, after showing a profit of $80 millioo in 1979. Some analysts expect the 1980 deficit to be much higher.

According to Reginald Duquesnoy, an auto an-alyst at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith in New York: "Peugeot is in a difficult financial position. It will report over $450 million in losses for 1980. They will probably run one-half that in 1981 and maybe if things go well they will break even in 1982

When it acquired Chrysler's European subsidi-ary in 1978, he said, Peugeot had a market share in France of 43 to 44 percent; today it is 33 percent.

Sturdy History

For years Peugeot built sturdy, comfortable cars that had a reputation for reliability and were clearly aimed at the more staid sections of the French bourgeoisie. The cars faithfully reflected the characteristics of the founding family, which still controls the company.

Although bittle known in the United States until fairly recently, Peugeot has long been a household name in France. Besides automobiles, the company makes a wide variety of tools and steel goods, also descended from those famous corset stays.

Pervasive Products

At the turn of the century the company said that its products pervaded French middle-class life. The company history at that time said: "At every hour of the day, Pengeot is present. Ma-dame gets up, put on her corset (Pengeot stays). turns on her gramophone (Peugeol spring), opens her umbrella (Peugeot frame). Monsieur winds his watch (Peugeot spring), adjusts his speciacles (Peugeot frame), does odd jobs about the house (Peugeot hammer and saw), tidies up the garden (Peugeot pitchfork) and takes a turn around town (Peugeot bicycle)."

But the company's image began to change in 1975 when it took cootrol of the ailing Citroen auto company. The two companies could oot have been more different — Citroen cars are technically innovative and aimed at a younger market. But helped by Peugeot expertise, money and a government loan, Citroen was turned around. After that, expansion seemed to become the theme at Peu-

The Fed's bill also would make it easier for the FDIC to inject funds to keep technically failing banks alive while a merger is sought. FSLIC's line of credit with the Treasury would be increased to 53 billion, from $750 million, to help bail out savings and loans.

By N.R. Kleinfield New York Times Service NEW YORK - Prototypes of small machines that play high-quality digital records about five inches in diameter were demon-strated Wednesday by Sony and North American Philips.

Such systems are expected even-ually to make current turntables obsolete, but perhaps not for a lecade or more. The two companies said their models would not reach the Japanese and European markets until the fall of next year or U.S. stores until at least 1983. The two electronics companies joined forces a year ago to develop the so-called Compact Disk Digital Audio System.

It's a sensational product," said James Magid, an analyst with L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin. "But it's still a product that's not yet with us. It's nothing to be excited about in the near

The demonstratioo of the players so far in advance of consumer availability was interpreted by some industry analysts as a tactic by Sony and Philips to strengthen the chances of having their systems adopted as the standard for worldwide digital audio players.

A number of concerns, including RCA, Pioneer and AEG-Telefunken, have been scrambling to produce digital players and, while prototypes have been constructed, no model has yet reached the

EEC-Japan Talks

On Cars Snagged

United Press International BRUSSELS — Talks between the European Economic Community and Japan on restriction of Japanese car exports have failed to produce any result so far, EEC sources said Thursday. The EEC Commission pressed Japan's representative on Wednesday to undertake toward the Common Market a similar commitment as it did toward the United States early this month on limiting the export of automobiles. The EEC also wants Japan to make sure that cars not being exported to the United States are not diverted to the European market.

"The Japanese government did oot give the assurances sought by the Community," one source said. The talks between the Japanese government and the commission will continue at the level of high officials Monday and Tuesday. Premier Zenko Suzuki and Trade Minister Rokusuke Tanaka are due in Brussels around mid-June.

gital players. It is not yet clear how big the demand might be for the digital players, or how quickly that de-mand will emerge. Industry ana-lysts expect them to sell initially for $500 to $800, in the range of high quality conventional turnt-ables. What is more, today's pho-nograph record is also being buf-feted by cassettes and by videodisk versions of record albums. versions of record albums. "It's one of several ways of handling the phonograph record of the 1990s," Mr. Magid said. "This is a fairly small product for the big electronics companies, relative to some of the video prod-ucts," added Otis Bradley, an analyst at Alex Brown & Sons.

Traditional records are pro-duced by analog methods, that is, every variation in sound is recorded and stored in the grooves of the disk. In full-digital recordings, sound is tranformed into a code using binary methods — informa-tion becomes a combination of ones and zeros.

The disks contain no grooves. Instead, they have a layer of microscopic pits that contain the bi-nary code. When the disk is inserted into the player, a laser beam scans the code and converts it back into signals intelligible to the rest of the stereo system.

Because the code can he read much more precisely than the grooves in a record, the sound is true to the original recording. Sony and North American Philips each demonstrated slightly different players Wednesday, although they are compatible and can be plugged into conventional amplifiers and speakers. Moreover, their small size and resistance to shock make them suitable for use in car stereo systems. The disks are 4.7 inches in diameter, yet contain 60 minutes of playing time on a side, double the capacity of a trad-

Despite the group's recent strength, most of the stocks are still selling at depressed price-carnings multiples when compared with that of the Standard & Poor's 400-stock index, analysis said. "Prospects Remain Bright"

"Prospects remain bright, there-fore, for further capital gains op-portunities among selected stocks in the food industry," according to Robert J. Cummins, analyst at Wertheim & Co. Besides Pillsbury, Ouster Oats Weitz and Hubler, Quaker Oats, Heinz and Hublein, Mr. Cummins said be also favored eatrice Foods, Dart & Kraft and Ralston Purina. The analyst said he believed that a "better feeling about the con-sumer sector in general, based on a prospective strengthening of real disposable income, and a favorable current earnings trends for most of the food companies," are good bases of support for the stocks.

The drop in commodity prices and reversal of last year's drought-related increase in food-ingredient cosis have also drawn attention to the food stocks, Mr. Cummins added

At E.F. Hutton, investment emphasis has switched from "infla-tion defense" to "disinflation of-fense," said Peter J. Barry, Hutton's food industry analyst. Given "our belief that inflation will lessen as 1981 unfolds," Mr. Barry said, "we expect food stocks will be among the principal beneficiar-

The play on lower commodity prices soon may be over, he added, and with interest rates continuing to he high, "it should be a good chance to buy stocks," Mr. Ma-guire said. Other diversified stocks that he favored are Hublein and Quaker Oats. Quaker Oats.

Among the diversified compa-nies, "Dart & Kraft is one of the unique opportunites," said Law-rence Adelman, analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds. Not only is it broadening its product line, with its acquisition of Hobart, it also is trying to improve profit margins in its basic food business, he said.

Dean Witter is maintaining a generally bullish stance toward food stocks, with Quaker Oats, Be-atrice, Kellogg, Raiston Purina and General Mills as the major buy recommendations.

General Foods was placed on the "sell" list, however, by David A. Goldman, an analyst at Smith, Barney, Harris, Upham, along with Heinz and Ralston Purina. Mr. Goldman held a negative opinion toward the food stocks. "Most of them are unattractive, whose of them are unattractive of the stocks. with the exception of Bearice and Dart & Kraft, right now," he said. The son of Dunross' most trusted associate has been kidnapped and murdered, but not before having sold the firm's most vital secrets to a U.S. conglomerator with designs on Noble House, and having stolen a half-coin that requires Dunross to grant the bearer "what-soever be asks."

These files also indicate that Noble House has been infiltrated. Dunross' horse trainer has been blackmstled into a vlot to bidgen his blackmailed into a plot to kidnap his boss. Dunross' sister has developed boss. Dunross' sister has developed multiple sclerosis. The son-in-law of a good friend has been killed in a car crash and the daughter may have damaged her "insides." But curiously enough, its got into it, But curiously enough, its staggering complexity is one of the things that the novel has going for it. Not only is "Noble House" as long as life, it's also as rich with possibilities. For by the time you're halfway through this fourth installment in Clavell's fictional history of the Far East - the previous three entries in which were "King Rat," "Tai-Pan" and "Shogun" - there are so many irons in the fire that almost anything can plausibly happen. It may even be that Clavell himself loses track of his story. It seems to me that there's a spy or two whose fate is never resolved. And

Kenneth Moffett, the federal mediator assigned to the talks, said in a statement from his office in Washington: "Today's talks have been canceled at the insistence of both parties. No new talks have been scheduled, although they can be called back to the table by me."

The NLRB, acting on the request of its general counsel Wil-liam A. Lubbers, said Wednesday night it wanted to give further study to an unfair-labor-practice charge lodged against the club owners by the players association. The court action had to take place at U.S. District Court in in labor-practice charge that led order was filed there. NLRB officials had said they expected the restraining-order rein New York Thursday to, in Mil-ler's words, "make the final deci-sion on a strike." He made that comment Wednesday before he knew of the impending court ac-tion, and he repeated his view that the players would "never buy the owners' plan as it now stands."

The 16-month stalemate in the negotiations has centered on the question of compensation for free agents. The owners, acting on a right they gained in the new basic agreement in May 1980, unilateral-ly implemented their free-agent plan last February.

The owner's plan sets up criteria for "ranking" free agents in the reentry draft and requires that teams signing these players give the teams losing them roster play-ers as commensation. Among the ers as compensation. Among the points of contention in the negotiations has been the oumber of roster players a team would be able to protect from being used as compensation.

The players say that the owners' compensation proposal in its pres-ent form would inhibit their movement from team to team and reduce their bargaining power.

advancing to the third round of the French loternational Tennis Championships.

The 24-year-old Swede pounded out a 6-1, 7-5, 6-0 victory just as the skies opened up with a down-pour that soon ended play for the day.

Borg, seeded to meet Jimmy Connors in the finals, had a similar experience Monday when he elimi-nated Spain's Jose Lopez-Maeso minutes before rain washed over Roland Garros Stadium's red clay courts.

Thursday was a public holiday in France, and thousands of fans swarmed around the courts. The most popular winner was Paul Torre, a 28-year-old Frenchman who is No. 220 in the world rankings. He upset Angel Gimenez of Spain, 6-3, 6-4, 6-3. Gimenez is ranked No. 72 worldwide.

Torre, after playing through the qualifying rounds, began the championship Tuesday by beating Paul McNamee of Australia, gunned Freochman Georges Goven, 6-3, 6-1, 5-7, 6-1, in a firstround match that had been left hanging after three sets because of rain Wednesday night. ranked 32d worldwide.

Romanian Ruzici, champion in 1978 and losing finalist to Chris Evert-Lloyd last year, justified her fifth seeding with a 7-5, 6-2 victory over Nanette Schutte of the Netherlands.

The dispute came when Edmondson was serving in the final set with the score 2-2. Disturbed by people moving in the stands, Edmondson slammed a ball into the back octting. He was penalized one point.

Edmondson asked for an explanation, but the umpire refused to answer him although he speaks fluent English. Edmondson then called the official "an arrogant pig." He was promptly assessed another point.

Edmondson lost the next point to trail, 0-40, and then deliberately served the next two balls into the wrong side of the court.

But Will It Sell?

By Russell Baker

NEW YORK — I am writing a best seller. At first it was about dieting. I titled it, "The Smoke Your Way Down to a Skeleton Diet Book."

It explained how 10 cigarettes smoked in rapid succession whenever you felt the urge to eat could suppress the urge to take in 3,000 calories a day.

They said America wouldn't buy it. Cigarettes were unhealthy. "America wants a book about how to stay healthy," they said, So I started a new best seller. Baker It was titled,

"Say Nuts To Death." The opening chapter explained that you could live practically forever if you did 100 push-ups a day and had surgical implants of fantastic genes. "No, no, no," everybody said. "All that's too hard. People want a book about how to stay healthy without working at iL Americans spend so much time reading about how to get rich, they don't have time left to be healthy."

l started a best seller about how to get rich, "Blackmail Your Way to the Big Bucks." It began with the citation from "All the King's Men" to the effect that "we go from the stink of the diaper to the stench of the shroud . . . there's something on everybody." It ex-plained how bosses fool around a lot, how they might be persuaded to pay hig salaries to employees who keep their lips huttoned.

"Americans don't want to hlackmail the boss. They want to become the boss," they said, I started over. A new best seller in the typewriter. All about how to rise to the top of the tree. I called it, "Only Rats Win Rat Races."

Chapter One showed how you had to start when you were just a little kid, how to undercut your father's power in the family hy smearing lipstick oo his dirty bandkerchiefs and showing them to your mother, but before I was halfway through .

"No, no, oo," they said. "American women will be outraged by the suggestion they can be duped by 5-year-olds — and they are sick of being stereotyped as people who do the laundry. Nowadays we have female rage.

So I threw it all away and started over — an angry novel about a woman enraged by the dominance of men in society. It opened with a woman named Pearl being rejected when she applied for a joh as a municipal garbage collector.

I started again. It would be a hig novel. A really big novel. The title was "Grandma Calls the Tune." I titled it, "O Tempora, O Bores," which is Latin meaning, "This book goes on forever." It opened with three chapters about the academical formation of Marine the geological formation of Mexico in the year 87,653 B.C.

"A real grabber," everybody said. "Let's see more." I gave them five chapters on the conflict between the Rocky Mouotains and the antediluvian rains. "Get on with the story," they said. "The sex, man, the sex and the family feuding and the birthing and living and dying -get to the saga."

I came across with a torrid chapter about the creation of the Sahara Desert. "Forget it," they said. It's got no famous names, no gossip, People want gossip about famous names.

I junked the saga to go into show business. After I become a great star and then an old has-been I will write a confession to make a

Pyramids on the Mediterranean

'We Did Not Destroy Nature Here,' Resort's Architect Says

By Richard M. Evans national Herald Tribung A GRANDE MOTTE. France — Jean Balladur

built his own city and many people thought it was a scandal. His divergence from previous architectural norms has earned him tities from "crackpot" to "visionary." His ideas seemed too extrapolative, too futuristic.

It was Balladur who designed and built the ultramodern resort of La Grande Motte. His decision, in 1962, to use the pyramid as the principal structure in the new Mediterranean town was met with a mixture of dismay and anger. "People complained that I was destroying nature," he recalled with a wan smile. "They thought that I would alienate the local populace and drive off the wildlife Almost 20 years later the city is 95-percent completed. It is an unusual landscape of pyramids and sweeps of white concrete.

The flat coastal plain has been landscaped into a series of low hills. More than 21,000 trees line the streets.

undertaken in Europe since Emperor Hadrian decided that something had to be done about the invading Scottish tribes. Begun in the boom of the early 1960s, the modern city on the sea predicted that the birds would leave. But it's not true." Indeed, there are more birds than before.

We must escape from this idea that nature is, in itself, a good thing. Ask the farmer when the floods come or when his crops are hlighted." Balladur believes that humans must seek to modify the world to suit changing needs. As population grows, cities of handsome monuments no longer suffice.

This year will see the final touches to La Grande Motte. The architect, tanned and robust at 55, puffed at a pipe in his off-ice a mile from the Mediterranean and reflected on his experiment

"I chose the pyramid for two reasons. First, it allows some kind of harmony with the landscape, which is horizontal. Sec-ond, it allows everyone to have an outside terrace nearly as large as their apartment. People like to be in the sun, they like to see their neighbors. The greatest problem in the modern city is that everyone is locked behind their walls and feels very much alone. There is little occasion to THEE

If controversial in its huilding style, La Grande Motte does represent an attempt to attune peo-ple with their surroundings. Parks and sports grounds are far more numerous than in the traditional community. There are squares for artists to sell their wares. The beaches are always open. "Meeting places are essential," the architect said, "yet they are often forgotten. In many cities you see lots of nice green lawns, but they serve no function. They decorate the wasted spaces before buildings or between highway interchanges and there is no way to get at them."

Born in Turkey in 1924 of French parents, Balladur developed early a taste for literature and philosophy. In France, he studied under Jean-Paul Sartre and prepared for a career of letters. But Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and Bauhaus functionalism captured his imagination. "Sartre and van der Rohe were saying the same thing, that man is his own master, that living well or poorly is our choice. But van der Rohe was actually doing something about it. He was building things."

The Curie Institute, Balladur's first major project, displayed his high regard for Banhaus ideas. It earned him enough acclaim that the French government chose him for the Grande Motte project.

His views, however, have changed over the years. "I had enormous respect for architects like van der Rohe and Le Corbusier, because they were the first to think about the city in whole terms. Le Corbusier knew that the Industrial Revolution had changed everything. But the work was too functional, too utilitarian. There has to be a playfulness about architecture. We must like what we see." Today, these ideas no longer seem outrageous. Because of La Grande Motte's financial success - the city selfs more than 1,000 condominium apariments each year — a large French insurance firm has given Balladur another commission. Now the designer of cities is huilding his first sky-scraper. Construction on it is under way in Paris' mini-Manhattan oeighborhood of La Defense.

American Landscape

But the architect's enthusiasm for the futuristic is not without its measure of skepticism. Though lack of space in cities necessitates the building of skyscrapers, he expresses concern over worldwide imitation of a new American landscape, of which he is not overly fond.

"If we are going to build cities of skyscrapers, then we can't make them all look the same. Different things are possible; curved forms, something other than a box. This is what I'm trying to do in La Defense." The United States, he feels, is the dominant force in world architecture today, and Europe is copying its failures as well as its SUCCESSES

"My point of view is Enrope-an," he said. "We must build oew things because the old ones will not last forever, but much of the past is of value."

Some things are permanent in architecture. "After all," Balla-dur said. "Paris is still my favorite city."
